MIKE MARTIN

Mike moved to Candelo in 2004 with his wife Sharon and two youngest children. Within moments of his arrival, he became an integral part of the Candelo community; in particular, bringing his skills and passion to support the activities of the Candelo Arts Society.

He quickly established the Kameruka Bush Orchestra, bringing regular bush dances to Kameruka Hall and welcoming musicians and dancers to participate, keeping a swag of traditional Australian tunes alive, and the community fit and healthy with vigorous wholesome fun.

Mike has shared his love of music, community and the environment with many young people during his many years as the Tantawangalo school bus drive, singing with the children and cleaning up rubbish along the roadside.

Mike is a musician, school bus driver, builder, farmer, songwriter, shearer, playwright, visual artist, dance caller and national busking champion. He's a generous and passionate man who cares about his community and is always willing to lend a hand and share his wisdom (and opinions).

JESS CLARKE

CANDELO SHOWS
RURAL YOUNG WOMAN 2025

Growing up in the heart of a rural community, Jess developed a deep connection to agriculture and a love for the equestrian world. Her upbringing around horses and spending time on beef properties where her dad worked instilled a passion for livestock, the land and the strong sense of community that ties rural life together.

Jess's journey has been shaped by her involvement in the horse industry, where she has participated in showjumping and agricultural shows. These experiences have not only fostered her love for animals but have also deepened her commitment to supporting and connecting local communities. As a member of the Bega Showjumping Club and Candelo Show Society, Jess actively contributes to the success of rural events.

Currently Jess is pursuing a diploma in early childhood education, reflecting her passion for the industry. She finds immense joy in shaping young minds and creating opportunities for growth and learning.

Jess is proud to participate in the Young Women competition, a platform that celebrates tradition while embracing progress. She looks forward to using this opportunity to showcase the strength of rural communities and inspire young people to become the change they wish to see
